

I CLAIM:

1. A new and distinct cultivar of Chrysanthemum plant that displays:

(a) a low compact, well-branched, and generally uniform and spherical growth habit,

(b) during October a profusion of attractive decorative light yellow double blossoms,

(c) dark green leaves that contrast well with the light yellow blossoms, and

(d) an ability to grow well in pots to provide an attractive potted gift plant;

substantially as herein shown and described.